

GRADUATE PROGRAMME 2024

Apply your economics in a leading consultancy and forecasting company.

Oxford Economics is the world's foremost independent economic advisory firm.

We have an opportunity for exceptional economics graduates to join our teams in London and Belfast. This two-year scheme places successful candidates in six-month rotations, with opportunities across our teams including:

- Macro Forecasting
- Economic Impact
- Macro Consulting
- Cities and Regions
- Scenarios and Macro Modeling
- Tourism Economics
- Global Industry.

The rotating nature of this program, coupled with comprehensive on-the-job training, will allow you to gain in-depth practical knowledge and professional experience related to your academic and extracurricular background. You will work closely with our experienced team of economists and take on some responsibility for analysis, country forecasting and econometrics.

By the end of the program, you will be able to:

- Apply your formal economics training to real world issues
- Interact confidently with clients and the media to explain your work
- Manage your time efficiently and balance several competing priorities
- Apply a range of analytical techniques and software packages to provide insights
- Write concisely and with impact on complex issues
